

Content

Title: Mike Engström southwest of Bjorli, Norway, pilot Ulf Jonsson
In the background, the valley “Asbjørnsdalen”, one of the entrances to the Reinheimen National Park

Picture: Petr Kolmann

- | | | | |
|----|--|----|--|
| 8 | Norway for advanced pilots
As a pilot in Bjorli, you always have to keep an eye on the föhn wind, be able to deal with strong turbulence and master the landing approach at 150 km/h. | 52 | On the airwaves over San Francisco
On his big flight around the San Francisco Bay, Ramy Yanez surprised everyone by making a wave flight along California’s Pacific coast. |
| 14 | It is not simple
Up- and downslope winds, convergence areas and descending air masses over the center of the valley – using the thermals over the Mittelgebirge is not easy. | 60 | Lienz twice different
Two days with almost identical conditions at the Alpine flying camp surprise with different weather developments. |
| 24 | 600 kilometers in the rain
Making the most of a day with difficult weather is more fun than flying a record in perfect weather. | 68 | A gliding life
Riccardo Brigliadori was born with the pilot gene and, contrary to the advice of his father Leo, he has devoted himself to gliding. With great success. |
| 32 | Motor gliders Part 3
It’s better to have a turbo than to need one – but only reliable technology and well-thought-out procedures will maximize safety. | 74 | Before there were training planes
They weren’t squeamish back then; they simply “threw” the young trainee pilots into the air and “in submission” waited to see what happened. |
| 40 | In the sky with “tea bags” and kites
As a glider pilot, you are rarely alone in the sky and then it is good to be able to correctly assess the colleagues of the other thermal sports. | 82 | Stories from the cockpit
This time, it is his first passenger flight. |
| 46 | Cooling tower thermal
The cooling tower plume is sometimes lopsided, so will the thermal currents also tilt or will they remain vertical? | 3 | Editorial |
| | | 5 | Readers` mail/Books |
| | | 84 | Imprint/Preview |